THE CITY OF STONES UNESCO WORLD HERITAGE SITE

MATERA

The original urban nucleus was born rising from the natural caves excavated into the rock and then modelled in more and more complex structures within two large natural amphitheatres that are Sasso Cavenoso and Sasso Barisano.

In 1952 the Sassi di Matera, by order of the Italian government, were emptied by most of its inhabitants due to the poor conditions of poverty and degradation in which they were so called "the Shame of Italy". After about 40 years, in 1993, the Sassi di Matera and the Parco delle Chiese Rupestri were named World Heritage Sites by UNESCO thanks to an important process of rehabilitation and redevelopment.

In 2019 Matera will be European Capital of Culture.

Today the Sassi di Matera offer the visitors a great cultural landscape. From an architectural point of view they present an incredible series of elements that have been stratified over time, from the rock complexes excavated by man, to the rock churches, burial areas, which continually alternate with buildings from any different era: Middle Ages, Renaissance, baroque until modern times. The visitor will continually find caves, hypogea, palazzotti, churches, neighbourhoods, stairways, balconies, gardens and vegetable gardens all nestled with each other to form a unique and magical place. The over 150 rock churches, with their splendid Byzantine frescoes, compose the homonymous regional park. Not far from the city, the Crypt of the Original Sin, is also known as the "Sistine Chapel" of rock wall painting.

In Matera, culture is also visible in the numerous museums and cultural centres set in ancient houses of great beauty.

IN 2019 MATERA
WILL BE EUROPEAN
CAPITAL OF CULTURE.
